News from the AAE

actuvie*w*'s Speaker of the Month

Jeroen van den Bosch, Member of the AAE Pensions Committee & Chairperson of the AAE WG on Pension Tracking Systems

"The role of actuaries has fundamentally changed over the past decades. While actuaries used to primarily answer technical questions in the background, today's actuaries are even more aware of the challenges societies are facing.

For example, today's actuaries are concerned with the financial situation of individuals, and how and which information can best be presented through, for example, a Pension Tracking Service. This also means that actuaries are becoming more visible and need to use all modern tools such as podcasts, videos, and social media to make their voices heard."

🎤 Congratulations to Jeroen van den Bosch, Vice-Chairperson of the AAE Pensions Committee and Chairperson of the AAE Working Group on Pension Tracking Systems for this well-deserved spotlight! 🌟

Jeroen puts it perfectly: today's actuaries are no longer just answering technical questions in the background. They are engaged with the real financial challenges societies face and they need to use every modern tool available, from podcasts to social media, to make their voices heard. 🗣️

At the Actuarial Association of Europe, we couldn't agree more. The profession is evolving and so is the way we communicate. 💡
